

ECI Statement on US Visas and International Scientific Relationships

The Engineering Conferences International (ECI) Organization is very proud of its record at providing more than 2000 leading Conferences in all areas of engineering for more than 50 years. The Conferences have been notable for encouraging attendance by leaders in the field from many different countries and from industry, government, universities and NGOs to advance engineering and technology in critical areas of global societal need. A current list of conferences can be found HERE.

In keeping with ECI's long-standing position, criteria for selection of Conference Chairs and participants are entirely based on technical and engineering merit, irrespective of country of origin or religion. Discussion among participants, including students, at conferences is highly engaged and great collaborating friendships have evolved among participants who come from countries around the world.

If an individual plans to attend one of our conferences in the US and is unable to obtain the required visa in a timely manner, please contact us and we will do our best to help.
